Submission via Grants.gov

All applications to this program must be submitted via Grants.gov. We strongly recommend that you complete or verify your registration at least two weeks before the application deadline, as it takes time for your registration to be processed.

I. Program Description

Collaborative Research Grants support interpretive humanities research undertaken by a team of two or more scholars, for full-time or part-time activities for periods of a minimum of one year up to a maximum of three years. Support is available for various combinations of scholars, consultants, and research assistants; project-related travel; field work; applications of information technology; and technical support and services. All grantees are expected to communicate the results of their work to the appropriate scholarly and public audiences.

Eligible projects include

- research that significantly adds to knowledge and understanding of the humanities;
- conferences on topics of major importance in the humanities that will benefit scholarly research;
- archaeological projects that include the interpretation and communication of results (projects may encompass excavation, materials analysis, laboratory work, field reports, and preparation of interpretive monographs); and
- research that uses the knowledge and perspectives of the humanities and historical or philosophical methods to enhance understanding of science, technology, medicine, and the social sciences.

These grants support full-time or part-time activities for periods of one to three years.

Sample narratives from successful grant applications are available on the program resource page. You may request additional samples by sending an e-mail message to collaborative@neh.gov.

Providing access to grant products

As a taxpayer-supported federal agency, NEH endeavors to make the products of its grants available to the broadest possible audience. Our goal is for scholars, educators, students, and the American public to have ready and easy access to the wide range of NEH grant products. For the Collaborative Research program, such products may include monographs, excavation reports, multi-authored volumes, websites, and the like. For projects that lead to the development of websites, all other considerations being equal, NEH gives preference to those that provide free access to the public. Detailed guidance on dissemination matters can be found in the Final product and dissemination section below.

Previously funded projects

Applicants whose projects have received NEH support may apply for a grant for a new or subsequent stage of their projects. Proposals for these projects do not receive special consideration and are judged by the same criteria as others in the grant competition.

Collaborative Research Grants may not be used for

- projects undertaken by individuals without collaboration;
- editions or translations (see the note below);
- projects that seek to promote a particular political, religious, or ideological point of view;
- projects that advocate a particular program of social action;
- specific policy studies or educational or technical impact assessments;
- research in educational methods, tests, or measurements, or any projects primarily intended for students in formal learning environments;
- support for the preparation or publication of textbooks intended primarily for classroom use;
- planning or putting on exhibitions;
- inventories of collections;
- development of tools, including digital tools, or any materials analysis whose primary goal is refinement of a method, unless the development contributes to the larger interpretive goals of the project;
- creation and enhancement of databases, unless the database contributes to the larger interpretive goals of the project;
- projects in cognitive psychology;
- collection of oral history interviews or ethnographic research, unless accompanied by humanities research that is qualitative and interpretive;
- recurrent meetings of professional organizations, societies, and scholarly organizations;
- works in the creative and performing arts (for example, painting, writing fiction or poetry, dance performance);

- producing secondary work in languages other than English; or
- publication costs or publication subvention.

Note: Applicants for individual projects should apply to the Fellowships or Summer Stipends programs. Applicants who propose to develop digital tools should consult with the NEH Office of Digital Humanities at odh@neh.gov. Proposals for editions and translations should be submitted to Scholarly Editions and Translations. Proposals for preparing bibliographies, descriptive catalogs, dictionaries, encyclopedias, databases, or other research tools or reference works should be submitted to the Humanities Collections and Reference Resources program in the NEH Division of Preservation and Access. Applicants planning exhibitions should consult with the NEH Division of Public Programs at 202-606-8269 and publicpgms@neh.gov.

NEH encourages submission of Collaborative Research applications from faculty at Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Hispanic-Serving Institutions, and Tribal Colleges and Universities.

Applicants proposing research in the social or behavioral sciences, linguistics, or economics are encouraged to consider the funding programs of the National Science Foundation's Directorate for Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences at <http://nsf.gov/dir/index.jsp?org=sbe>.

Applicants proposing medical, clinical, or behavioral research are encouraged to consider the funding programs of the National Institutes of Health at <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/oer.htm>.

The Collaborative Research program welcomes projects that respond to NEH's Bridging Cultures initiative. Such projects could focus on cultures internationally or within the United States. International projects might seek to enlarge Americans' understanding of other places and times, as well as other perspectives and intellectual traditions. American projects might explore the great variety of cultural influences on, and myriad subcultures within, American society. These projects might also investigate how Americans have approached and attempted to surmount seemingly unbridgeable cultural divides, or examine the ideals of civility and civic discourse. In connection with a focus on civic discourse, projects might explore the role of women in America's civic life as well as the civic role of women in other cultures and regions of the world.

II. Award Information

Awards are made for a minimum of one year up to a maximum of three years and normally range from $25,000 to $100,000 per year. Awards for conferences are typically made for a minimum of one year and normally range from $15,000 to $65,000 per grant. Successful applicants will be awarded a grant in outright funds, matching funds, or a combination of the two, depending on the applicant's preference and the availability of funds. The use of federal matching funds is encouraged. Federal matching funds are released on a one-to-one basis when a grantee secures gift funds from eligible third parties.

(Learn more about different types of grant funding.)

Cost sharing

Cost sharing consists of the cash contributions made to a project by the applicant, third parties, and other federal agencies, as well as third party in-kind contributions, such as donated services and goods. Cost sharing also includes nonfederal gift money raised to release federal matching funds. Although cost sharing is not required, NEH is rarely able to support the full costs of projects approved for funding. In most cases, NEH Collaborative Research grants cover no more than 80 percent of project costs. The balance of the costs is to be borne by the applicant's institution or other sources. Previously funded projects seeking further support should expect a progressively larger share of the costs to be assumed by the host institution or third parties.

III. Eligibility

Eligibility is limited to

- institutional applicants, that is, U.S. nonprofit organizations with IRS tax-exempt status, and state and local governments and federally recognized Indian tribal governments; and
- project directors who are not affiliated with an eligible institution, that is, U.S. citizens or foreign nationals who have been living in the United States or its jurisdictions for at least the three years immediately preceding the application deadline.

Project directors affiliated with an eligible institution must apply through an institution, ordinarily their own institution. Only adjunct faculty, faculty at for-profit institutions, and scholars without an institutional affiliation may apply as unaffiliated project directors.

Degree candidates may not be project directors.

Project directors may submit only one application to either the Collaborative Research or the Scholarly Editions and Translations program, but not both. They may, however, apply for other NEH awards, including Fellowships or Summer Stipends.

NEH generally does not award grants to other federal entities or to applicants whose projects are so closely intertwined with a federal entity that the project takes on characteristics of the federal entity's own authorized activities. This does not preclude applicants from using grant funds from, or sites and materials controlled by, other federal entities in their projects. Such resources may not, however, be used as gifts to release NEH matching funds.

Late, incomplete, or ineligible applications will not be reviewed. Find answers to your eligibility questions in the Frequently Asked Questions, available on the program resource page.

IV. Application and Submission Information

HOW TO PREPARE YOUR APPLICATION

Application advice and proposal drafts:

Applicants may submit by e-mail (collaborative@neh.gov) a draft of the narrative and budget sections of their proposal at least six weeks before the deadline. Do NOT submit your draft through Grants.gov. A response cannot be guaranteed if the draft arrives less than six weeks before the deadline. Submitting a draft proposal enables an applicant to receive staff comments about the substance and format of the application. The more complete the draft, the more helpful the response can be. Staff comments are not part of the formal review process and have no bearing on the final outcome of the proposal, but previous applicants have found them helpful. Once NEH has received a formal application, its staff will not comment on its status except with respect to questions of completeness or eligibility.

You will prepare your application for submission via Grants.gov just as you would a paper application. Your application must consist of the following parts.

1. Statement of significance and impact

Provide a one-page abstract written for a nonspecialist audience, stating clearly the importance of the proposed work and its relation to larger issues in the humanities.

2. Table of contents

Provide a one-page list of all parts of the application and corresponding page numbers.

3. List of participants

Provide a one-page list, in alphabetical order, surnames first, of all participants and collaborators on the project. Include any institutional affiliations. The names on this list must match the names mentioned in the staff section of the project's narrative description. This list must include advisory board members, if any. Foreign nationals may be part of the project team and may be included in the budget.

4. Narrative

The narrative should not assume any specialized knowledge on the part of its readers, and it should be free of jargon. The narrative must be introduced with a project title that describes the proposal. The project title must be no more than 125 characters, and it should be informative to a nonspecialist audience.

In the narrative applicants must provide an intellectual justification for the project and a work plan. Narrative descriptions are limited to twenty-five double-spaced pages.

Material that exceeds the page limit will not be reviewed. All pages should have one-inch margins, and the font size should be no smaller than Times New Roman eleven point. Use appendices to provide supplementary material. Applicants should write their proposals with the evaluation criteria (listed below) in mind. Provide a detailed project description consisting of the following sections.

- Substance and context

Provide a clear and concise explanation of the project and its value to scholars, students, and general audiences in the humanities. Describe the scope of the research, the source materials, the relationship of the research to other published and ongoing work in the field, and the major issues to be addressed. Include a bibliographical essay in the narrative section or a bibliography of relevant primary and secondary sources in an appendix.

- History and duration of the project

Provide a concise history of the project, including information about preliminary research or planning, previous financial support, publications produced, and resources or research facilities available. List any print or electronic products with dates of publication; where applicable, the list must indicate the publisher, print or production runs, sales, and royalties. Provide reviews of the most recent products in an appendix. If an archaeological excavation is proposed, list publications of previous field reports and interpretive studies of the site. If the project has a website, provide its address. If work on the project will continue after the period of the grant, provide details about that work and probable sources of support.

Proposals submitted by previously funded projects must be substantially updated, including a description of the new activities and a justification of the new budget request. The applicant must also describe how the previously funded project met its goals.

- Staff

Name the project director and all collaborators who would work on the project during the proposed grant period, regardless of whether NEH funds are requested to support their participation in the project. Describe their responsibilities and qualifications. State anticipated commitments of time for the project director and all collaborators, and explain the reasons for and nature of their participation. Project directors must devote a significant portion of their time to their projects. Provide résumés of the principal collaborators (maximum of two pages each) in an appendix.

○ Methods

Explain the project's methods.

- Explain how central research questions will be approached and how any potential difficulties in working with primary source materials will be resolved.
- Describe in detail the tasks to be undertaken and the computer technology to be employed, indicating what technical and staff resources will be required, as well as the staff's experience with the technology and its application to humanities scholarship. If your project involves a large amount of data, describe your plan to manage the data.
- Applicants proposing field work must discuss the appropriateness of the methodology, including a clear, explicit discussion of the links between the project's interpretive questions, the data, and the methods of collection and analysis.
- To receive support in this program, conferences must address significant issues or new directions in a humanities discipline or a combination of disciplines.
 - Conference applications should identify the intellectual issues to be addressed and address their importance. Explain why a conference is the appropriate forum for addressing these issues. Provide the URL for the conference website, if it already exists. Describe plans for online components or activities. Specify and describe the facilities to be used for holding the conference and housing participants.
 - In addition, conference applications must include an agenda, including the titles of key papers and the names of their authors and any commentators; a daily schedule; an explanation of how presenters have been selected; an explanation of plans for fostering productive discussions; and an explanation of why the conference is the appropriate method for realizing the research objectives and why the objectives cannot be achieved through regular meetings of professional organizations and formal or informal gatherings of scholars.

If you are requesting complete or partial funding for the development, acquisition, preservation, or enhancement of geospatial data, products, or services, you must conduct a due diligence search on the Geospatial One-Stop (GOS) Portal (<http://geo.data.gov/geoportal/catalog/main/home.page>) to discover whether the needed geospatial-related data, products, or services already exist. If not, you must produce the proposed geospatial data, products, or services in compliance with applicable proposed guidance posted at <http://www.fgdc.gov>. For further information on this requirement, please see Article 34 of the General Terms and Conditions for Awards.

Special requirements for archaeology projects located in the United States (applicants proposing any other sort of project should skip to the bullet for “Work plan” below)

All NEH-funded projects involving construction, renovation, repair, rehabilitation, or ground or visual disturbances must comply with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (16 U.S.C. § 470f, PDF) and its implementing regulations (36 C.F.R. Part 800, PDF). Section 106 requires NEH to review the effects of projects awarded NEH funding on historic properties that are listed or eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. When applicable, NEH must also provide the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation an opportunity to comment on such projects prior to the expenditure of any federal funds.

NEH does not formally initiate Section 106 review until it decides to fund an application; however, all applicants are expected to familiarize themselves with the Section 106 review process. Depending on the complexity of the project, NEH’s Section 106 review of a project may take several months to complete. Applicants should also know that a Collaborative Research awardee cannot begin any work involving construction, renovation, repair, rehabilitation, or ground or visual disturbances—and that NEH cannot release any federal funds—until NEH concludes its Section 106 review.

To ensure that a Section 106 review of a project proceeds smoothly and efficiently, take the following steps before submitting a Collaborative Research application:

1. Contact your State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) and/or Tribal Historic Preservation Officer (THPO) about your project. Once you have initiated contact, you should then provide the NEH Federal Preservation Officer (FPO@neh.gov) with the name and contact information of the person in the SHPO/THPO office who will be assisting NEH with its review.
2. Request a written determination from the SHPO/THPO, which indicates the following:
 - whether there are any properties in or near the project site that are listed, or eligible for listing, in the National Register;
 - if there are historic properties, how the NEH-funded project would affect them; and
 - if the effects would be adverse, how they might be avoided, minimized, or mitigated.

Any materials necessary for the SHPO/THPO to make his/her written determination should also accompany this request (with copies to NEH, ideally as part of the Collaborative Research application package).

NOTE: A letter from the SHPO/THPO that only provides support for an applicant's project will not suffice as a written determination.

3. Submit an archaeological survey for the Area of Potential Effects (that is, the geographic area/s within which a project may directly or indirectly affect historic properties) to NEH.
4. Submit a list containing the names of all consulting parties and their contact information, including titles, mailing addresses, and e-mail addresses. Consulting parties include federally-recognized Indian tribes, Native Hawaiian organizations, state and local governments, and individuals and organizations with a legal or economic relationship to a project or property (for example, historical societies or commissions).

NOTE: If a project is awarded funding, NEH will contact the consulting parties and invite them to consult and comment on an awardee's project. NEH will also ask awardees to post public notices about their projects through appropriate media (for example, newspapers, local post offices and libraries, the awardee's website, etc.). The comment period generally lasts thirty days, depending on the scope of a project.

Additional information about Section 106 is available here. Answers to frequently asked questions about Section 106 can be found here. Applicants can contact the NEH FPO with additional questions about Section 106 by e-mail (to FPO@neh.gov), by phone (202-606-8309), or by mail (addressed to Federal Preservation Officer, National Endowment for the Humanities, Room 420, 1100 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506).

- Work plan

- Describe what will be accomplished during each six-month period.
- Name all the staff members involved in the project during each six-month period and describe their specific tasks.

The work plan should match the work described in the proposal.

- Final product and dissemination

NEH expects grantees to provide broad access to all grant products, insofar as the condition of the materials and intellectual property rights allow. For this program, such products may include monographs, excavation reports, multi-authored volumes, and websites. Although grants may be used to support the preparation of print publications, NEH strongly encourages projects that offer free public access to online resources. For projects producing digital materials, all other considerations being equal, NEH will give preference to projects that provide free, online access to materials produced with grant funds.

If you are preparing work for electronic publication, you must describe the technical standards and formats used by the project, including markup languages, database applications, and imaging formats; you should also provide URLs or sample screen displays whenever possible. Applicants are encouraged to use open standards and markup conforming to the Text Encoding Initiative (TEI), and to employ current best practices in the creation of electronic publications. Other pertinent considerations include access, interoperability, and sustainability of electronic data. If you are preparing work for electronic publication, you must also include in the narrative a sustainability plan that discusses long-term support for the project. If the methodology used for the creation of an electronic publication departs from generally accepted standards and practices, explain your approach and give reasons why it was chosen.

Discuss publication arrangements, publicity plans, estimated prices, and user costs for both print and online publication. You must include any pertinent correspondence with a print or online publisher in the appendices. If the project involves materials under copyright, indicate your plans for securing the necessary permission to publish. Any supporting documents must also be included in the appendices.

Discuss both the medium chosen for the final product (print volumes, electronic media, or some combination), and the reasons for this choice. Projects that have a website must provide the URL. Projects that include a plan for a website must describe how a host for the site will be secured and the host's ability to sustain it.

5. Project budget

Using the instructions and the sample budget, complete the budget form (MS Excel format) or a format of your own that includes all the required information. (You can find links to the budget instructions, sample budget, and budget form on the program resource page.) You can customize the form to suit your project. Enter explanations for any unusual circumstances directly on the form. Include any subcontracts. You should retain a copy of your budget form.

Please attach a copy of your institution's current federally negotiated indirect cost rate agreement to the budget form.

6. Appendices

Use appendices to provide essential supplementary materials. Appendices must not exceed thirty-five pages. Material exceeding the page limit will not be reviewed.

- Include a brief résumé (two-page maximum) for each principal project participant.
- For conferences only, include e-mail messages or letters of commitment from presenters, and the proposed conference program.

- For archaeology projects, include appropriate plans, maps, and photographs, as well as evidence that all necessary permits will be forthcoming (and if possible, the State Historic Preservation Officer's eligibility determination, when such a determination is relevant).
- When applicable, include as well
 - permissions or letters of support from archives or other research venues;
 - contracts or letters of interest from print or online publishers;
 - published reviews;
 - documents confirming that copyright permissions have been secured;
 - samples such as web pages, screenshots, questionnaires, selection principles, or site maps;
 - a summary of results from previous grants, limited to essential information; and
 - a bibliography of relevant primary and secondary sources, if not included in the narrative.

Do NOT include letters of reference, assessments of previous applications, and testimonials.

7. Statement of history of grants

If the project has received previous support from any federal or nonfederal sources, including NEH, provide a one-page list of the sources, dates, and amounts of these funds. Explain how many years of NEH support the project has already received. If it has a long history of support, the sources and contributions may be grouped and summarized.

HOW TO SUBMIT YOUR APPLICATION

The application must be submitted to Grants.gov. Links to the Grants.gov application package and instructions for preparing and submitting the package can be found on the program resource page.

HOW TO SUBMIT SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIALS

If you are sending supplementary materials (those that cannot be submitted electronically—that is, audio or video materials), please send eight copies of each item and include at the bottom of the table of contents—submitted via Grants.gov—a list of the materials to be mailed separately.

Mail the materials to:

Collaborative Research
Division of Research Programs
Room 318
National Endowment for the Humanities
1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20506
202-606-8200

NEH continues to experience lengthy delays in the delivery of mail by the U.S. Postal Service, and in some cases materials are damaged by the irradiation process. We recommend that supplementary materials be sent by a commercial delivery service to ensure that they arrive intact by the receipt deadline.

If you wish to have the materials returned to you, please include a self-addressed, pre-paid mailer.

DEADLINES

Draft Proposals (optional): Program staff recommends that draft proposals be submitted at least six weeks before the deadline. Time constraints may prevent staff from reviewing draft proposals submitted after that date.

Applications must be received by Grants.gov by 11:59 P.M., Eastern Time, on December 6, 2012. Grants.gov will date- and time-stamp your application after it is fully uploaded. Applications submitted after that date will not be accepted. Supplementary materials must also arrive at NEH by December 6, 2012, to be considered as part of the application.

V. Application Review

Evaluators are asked to apply the following five criteria.

1. The intellectual significance of the project, including its potential contribution to scholarship in the humanities; the likelihood that it will stimulate new research; its relationship to larger themes in the humanities; and the significance of the material on which the project is based.

2. The pertinence of the research questions being posed, the appropriateness of research methods or conference design; the appropriateness of the technology employed in the project; the feasibility of the work plan; and the appropriateness of the field work to be undertaken, the archival or source materials to be studied, and the research site.
3. The qualifications, expertise, and levels of commitment of the project director and project staff or contributors, and the appropriateness and value of the collaboration.
4. The soundness of the dissemination and access plans, including benefit to the audience identified in the proposal and the strength of the case for employing print, a digital format, or a combination of media; and in the case of archaeology projects, the likelihood that the project will produce an interpretive study. For projects producing digital materials, all other considerations being equal, NEH will give preference to those that provide free, online access to materials produced with grant funds.
5. The potential for success, including the likelihood that the work proposed will be completed within the projected time frame; where appropriate, the project's previous record of success; and the reasonableness of the proposed budget in relation to projected results.

Review and selection process

Knowledgeable persons outside NEH will read each application and advise the agency about its merits. NEH staff comments on matters of fact or on significant issues that otherwise would be missing from these reviews, then makes recommendations to the National Council on the Humanities. The National Council meets at various times during the year to advise the NEH chairman on grants. The chairman takes into account the advice provided by the review process and, by law, makes all funding decisions.

VI. Award Administration Information

Award notices

Applicants will be notified of the decision by e-mail by August 31, 2013. Institutional grants administrators and project directors of successful applications will receive award documents by e-mail by September 30, 2013.
